

The truth never wavers.
The truth requires commitment.
The truth is worth it.

Telling the full story on every topic we report takes diligence, courage and an unwavering commitment to the truth across the entire organization of The New York Times. Piecing together the facts, connecting the details and reporting stories from multiple angles is how we deliver a critical role of the independent press — bringing stories to light that can affect policy, hold the powerful to account and help people understand the world.

Your support of today's independent press is an investment in tomorrow's. Thank you. Learn more at nytimes.com/worthit
